THE BRITISH EMPIRE IN INDIA .- The intelligence by the last Liverpool steamer, published in our columns yesterday, is very significant. That vast empire, founded in Hindostan by the genius of Clive and sustained and built up by the atrocities of Warren Hastings, is shaken to its centre-is tottering with innate feebleness. When all was most calm and quiet and the rulers slept in the most secure peacefulness, the storm of mutiny burst throughout the Indies, and is yet raging with fearful effect. Europeans by thousands have been massacred to plaint. The interests of the city, of the Agricultuappease the vengeance of the rebellious Sepovs. The civilization of half a century has been swept greatest possible accommodations be offered. A reduction of fare, in connection with the stage lines maniac rebels. Throughout the whole of that widespread empire the sun shines upon no place where the British rule is secure and firm. And but yesterday the government at London, through its agents, held the reins of that empire with as firm and steady grasp as ever monarchy could have desired.

It is unnecessary to go back to the causes that have produced this sudden and startling revolution. England does not understand them. Her counsellors of State are dumbfounded. All of their ideas as to colonial dependence are changed, and they sit in almost inexplicable despair, scarcely knowing how to change the course of the torrent which threatens their fairest dominion. Still we have every confidence in the ultimate suppression of this serious revolt, and the restoration of peace to India. The mutiny is almost entirely confined to the Mahomedans. The native tribes, or Hindoos, remain loyal to the British Government. It is of the forer class that the native army is principally made up; and the English Government is not unwilling to make use of the recent mutiny to sap the strength of the Sepoys and to recruit its Indian army from the Hindoos, who have generally been favorable to the suppression of the native governments and the absorption of territory by English rulers.

the possession of the soil and the right of citizenship, have created this alarming disturbance. The nathe superiority of the British Government and have been contented to enjoy their peculiar religious faith and progress in their scientific and literary pursuits under a rule which furnished them with internal peace and security against foreign invasion.

The Court of St. James will of course find all of its energies taxed in the management of this new crisis. But we repose the utmost faith in the Ministry to reconcile all difficulties in India-to open the very heart of China to the intercourse of the world, and to accomplish anything where Anglo-Saxon courage, intelligence, and discretion are allowed a fair field.

THE U. S. AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY'S EXHIBI-TION .- We find in several of our exchanges the time of holding the fifth annual exhibition of the U. S. Agricultaral Society, at Louisville, fixed in October. This is a mistake that may be injurious to the exhibition and disappoint many who desire to become exhibitors or visitors. We hope the newspapers throughout the country will promptly make the cor-

The time for holding this exhibition was originally fixed for September 1st, but on account of the great number of contributors expected it has been determined to commence it one day sooner. It will begin on Monday, August 31st, and continue six days. It gives abundant promise to be the most splendid exhibition of the kind that has ever been witnessed. Applications for entries are pouring in from every direction. The competition will be spirit ed and all the departments will be well filled.

[For the Louisville Bulletin.] EVA'S PRAYER.

Lovely Eva, with her tresses Waving in the dewy breeze, Waving in the breeze of midnight, Making harp-strings of the trees, Playing music fitful, dreamy, Filling all the air around Where she's kneeling in the starlight On the velvet, mossy ground.

Kneels she in the moonlit shadows, With her pure white hands clasped tight, Kneeling in the gathering shadows Of the still and solemn night; Enceling, praying in the moonlight, All alone in silence there, While the flowers seem to join her In her simple, earnest prayer.

For the incense from them stealing Bears the holy words afar, Bears them onward, onward, upward, To the bosom of a star, Where they nestle till the daylight Comes to chase its light away, Till they reach the throne of mercy. Till the breaking of the day.

Praying for the good of creatures For her own sweet self she prays, "Our Father" blending sweetly With her fervent, heart-felt lays-Praying for the poor and lowly, For the widow in her tears, For the orphan whom her kindness In the path of duty rears

Praying for the lone and weary. For the outcast wandering where Care has placed her frosty fingers Pray on, Eva, weave a garland For thy smooth and placid brow; Angels bright are hovering near thee In the spot where thou art now.

FLORIDA

THE NASHVILLE RAILROAD-NATIONAL FAIR. Our intelligence concerning the progress of the Nashville railroad continues to be of the most cheering character. It is going ahead. Mile after mile is being finished, and the broadest and brightest and most fruitful acres of Kentucky land opened to market. Louisville has already felt the reviving effects of this enterprise, and is destined month after month to receive new life blood into her veins from that source. The receipts of the road for July amounted to over $8,000, and this month will exceed $11,000. This is a magnificient business considering the length of the road, its limited connections, and the few facilities it has for the transportation of passengers and freights. These figures, however, may be regarded as a fair index of the future. They indicate surely what will be the condition of affairs when the entire line is completed and we are placed in immediate and close connection with the whole South

In view of the approaching National Fair we trust that the officers and directors of the Nashville road will make suitable arrangements for the immense tide of travel that will certainly set toward our city. There should not be the slightest ground of comral Association, and the read demand that the be desirable. Trains should also be run with as much frequency, and at such convenient hours, as the regular equipment of the road will allow.

We throw out these hints and suggestions because we take a great interest in the success of the road to Nashville, and furthermore because we feel solicitude that the National Fair should be worthy of Louisville, and Louisville, in all respects, worthy of the honor conferred upon her in holding it here.

A convention has recently been concluded beween the New York and Erie and the New York Central Railroads, the two great routes between Gotham and Lake Erie, in which, among other things, it is stipulated that free passes shall be discontinued except to members of the Legislatures of the States through which these roads pass. The deadhead system is one that the press generally would very willingly see abolished. Its abolition and the payment by these corporations of regular rates for the various notices that are day after day required the depth of six feet four inches, on the average. from the newspapers would greatly benefit the latter, The quantity has been estimated at 180,000,000 but this reservation of the free passes to members of the Legislature is significant of corruption. Of all men in the community this class should be ex- cannel coal. The original invaders of India, men not born to cluded from this sort of bribery. If their pay is not adequate to their expenses, including traveling expenses, it should be made so by the State, but tive intelligent as a race, have yielded readily to they should by all means be left altogether free from any obligations by which their legislation in regard to railroad companies may be biased. These railroad reformers have begun at the wrong end, but we suppose they only meant to "reform a little" for fear of a relapse.

> FREE NEGROES AT THE NORTH. -- We have recently published the particulars of a movement in the Canadian Parliament looking to the removal from that province of the free negroes-chiefly runaway slaves who have proven positive nuisances.

Mr. Gerrit Smith, who for a quarter of century has been a noted Abolitionist and has bestowed nearly a million of acres of New York lands upon free negroes, has become disgusted with the recipients of his bounty. He writes to the New York Tribune that the colored people are generally idle, worthless, and vicious, and that his expectations of their reformation have been in no degree realized. Fully half of those to whom he gave farms have sold their lands, or been so careless as to allow them to be sold for taxes. White men subsist comfortably and make money, but the negroes are ignorant and thriftless.

This is the general tenor of all the information w have ever received concerning the condition of the negro at the North. It must ever remain an indisputable fact that the condition of mild servitude in which the black lives at the South is much preferable to the imaginary blessings of Northern freedom.

RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

The river is falling with four feet four inches water on the falls last evening. Owing to the low stage of water the business on the river is not so brisk as it otherwise would be. The excellent steamer Henry Fitzhne will leave this port for Memphis to-day at 10 o'clock.

The Wm. Baird is advertised to leave for St. Louis to-day at 12. She is a fine boat and has excellent officers.

The new and magnificent steamer National will leave for Hickman and Memphis this evening at 4 o'clock. The N. arrived at 9 o'clock last night. We are indebted to her officers for the usual river

The Moses McLellan is the mailboat for Cincinnati to-day, and the J. H Done the Carrollton packet.

The steamer Aleonia has been sold at St. Louis for $8,000 to Capt. Wm. Wood.

ECCENTRIC DAMSEL .- The Andover (Mass.) Advertiser tells a story of a woman belonging to that town, who had a falling out with her husband, and threatened to drown herself in the "great pond." Her husband was not at first alarmed, but at length she disappeared; soon her bonnet and shawl were discovered at the water's edge, the alarm spread throughout the neighborhood, and dilligent search was instituted. Several persons were engaged in dragging the pond; grappling irons were brought into requisition, but to no purpose. All efforts, however, proved abortive, and the anxious ones were about to give up in despair, when lo and behold, the lost one appeared, safe and sound. She had been seated in a thicket overlooking the whole affair, and congratulated herself on having come it

AN INTERESTING MASONIC RELIC. - The Free Masons of the 46th British Regiment, now stationed at Windsor, England, have in their possession the original Bible belonging to Lodge No. 227 of the Irish Constitution, once in existence in that Corps, upon which George Washington-afterwards Commander-in-Chief of the army of the United Stateswas initiated into the rites of Free Masonry. This book was taken in battle in 1777, during the American war, by our troops, and honorably restored to the lodge of the 46th, with a military escort as a guard of honor.

FOUR CANDIDATES .- It appears there are four Democratic candidates for United States Senator from Mississippi, to succeed the Hon. A. G. Brown, whose term expires on the 4th of March, 1859, viz: The present incumbent, ex-Governor Mathew, and the Hons. W. S. Featherston and W. S. Barry, formerly Representatives in Congress. POSTAGE STAMPS NOT REDEEMED .-- The first as sistant Postmaster General, H. King, writes, July

There is no provision whatever in the post office act authorizing the use of stamps as currency; not is there, for that reason, any provision for their re-demption by the Department, where, by such use, they accumulate in inconvenient quantities in indi-vidual hands. The Cincinnati Commercial of Wednesday

Arrangements were yesterday concluded between the authorities of the Ohio and Mississippi and the Jeffersonville railroads, under which extraordinary facilities will be afforded for the transfer of passen-gers and freight between Cincinnati and Louisville. There will be three trains daily between these ciries, two of them being express trains. Freight will leave in the evening and be delivered at Jefferson-ville early the next morning.

THE UNION ASSOCIATION OF STEAMBOAT AND STEAMSHIP ENGINEERS .- This body is now in session at New Albany. The constitution requires that each local Association shall have public lecture rooms, libraries, and apparatus suitable for the demonstraiion of practical illustrations in the science of steam, either by their own members or by scientific lecturers, also, in the reception of apprentices, that they shall be practical blacksmiths or machinists of at least three years' standing before they can be admitted to enter on the duties of engineers hereafter. The aim of the Union is not only for the advancement of knowledge in the science of steam, but for the improvement of the whole body of engineers, so as hereafter to establish engineering as a systematic and responsible occupation, exclusive and independent, which, with theoretical and practical experience combined, through the many must tend to advance.

Hitherto steam has proved an unruly vapor. To obviate this and render its action certain and safe the formation of an Association was entered into by a few energetic minds, who were willing to take the lead in the advancement of the science, and thereby terminate the selfish individual system of engineering, which has done much to retard progress. Each member is now bound to impart his knowledge to hts associates, and to give it currency among the entire body of members, the result of which must ultimately tend towards advancement. Since their formation they have done much toward bettering their condition, socially and morally. Their number now exceeds nine hundred members, all of whom are required to contribute their knowledge, influence, counsel, and pecuniary means towards the advance of the science and the brotherhood. Thus the younger members are enabled to reap the rich experience of their elders. Bold, thinking minds are encouraged and upheld in their investigations and in the practice of their occupation. Surrounded thus, and measurably independent of ridicule, the mind has superior facilities for acquiring the knowledge to well and truly understand the laws which govern the science of steam. As this science is daily growing in use, and as the laws of our country place it peculiarly under the guidance of engineers, we trust the efforts now making by this body of men may be appreciated by and receive aid from the liberal portion of our community.

GRAYSON SPRINGS .- We are enabled to speak from personal experience in favor of this delightful summer resort. The medicinal virtues of the Gravson waters are attested by the number of astonishing cures which they have effected. The basin of a deep valley through which flow Bear creek is the point from which issue a number of mineral springs, containing in different combinations almost every variety of medicinal excellence. We venture to say, and the assertion is fortified by the verdict of all who have tried them, that no waters of the kind in the West contain so many and such varied proper-Company, of New York, against the Indianapolis ties as these. An invalid could not seek relief from and Cincinnati Railroad, the Supreme Court of mineral waters more likely, in our opinion, to effect a cure. For the accommodation, also, we can speak in the highest terms. The buildings are ample and pleasant, and the table of the hotel is supplied in a manner which renders universal satisfaction. The proprietors, Messrs. Herndon, Clarkson, & Co., have used great industry in procuring the appliances of omfort and pleasure. Mr. Clarkson, who has charge of the establishment, is rendering himself more popular than ever by his assiduous attentions to his guests. Visitors may rely upon his promise to leave nothing undone to promote their comfort and pleasure while at the springs. To those whe are in search of health or a place of sojourn during the heat of the summer, we can cordially recom mend Grayson Springs.

ORIGIN OF THE FRENCH TRI-COLOR. - At the encement of the eighteenth century, nearly one hundred years before the Revolution, the Frenci soldiers bore for a time the three colors; this was at next December, and not in the coming session as it the period of the triple alliance between the Kings of France and Spain and the Elector of Bavaria. When the three armies were being combined they reed to give the soldiers a cockade in which, as | ded in any impracticability of the an emblem of the union of the three people, they reproduced the color of each. Thus the white of France and the red of Spain found itself fatally blended with the blue, the national color of Bavaria. We would not, however, wish to attribute to these fac.s, more casual than premeditated, the origin of the standard and tri-color cockade adopted during the revolution. In 1780, green, popularized by Camille Desmoulins at the Palais Royal, was about to become the national emblem; but, on recollecting that it was the color of the livery of the Count D'Artois, the most unpopular of the princes, they sought another cockade. It was then that they endeavored to appreciate the colors of the city of Paris; the red and blue, already celebrated in more than one popular emeute, though both were borrowed from the heraldry of the ancient kings, and were the same that Etienne Marcel had hoisted in 1848.

> THE MASONIC FAIR .- We understand that the greatest exertions are being made to render the fair at the opening of the Masonic Temple one of the grandest affairs that ever transpired in the city. RAILROAD MEETING.—Pursuant to previous notice, the citizens of Henry, Owen, and Gallatin counties, Ky., deeply interested in and desirous of the construction of a railroad from Louisville to Newport or Covington, under the name of the "Louisville and Newport Branch Railroad," assembled in mass meeting, at Drennon Springs, on the "Louisville and Newport Branch Railroad," assembled in mass meeting, at Drennon Springs, on the 16th ult., and, on motion of Gen. George D. Dicken, Hon. E. F. Nuttall was called to the chair, and H. Skinner appointed Secretary. Whereupon, on motion, the following gentlemen were appointed to draft resolutions expressive of the sense of this meeting in relation to the construction of said road, to-wit: G. D. Dicken and W. W. Wright, of Henry; J. C. Ross, J. P. Orr, and G. Garnett, of Owen, and G. W. Sanders, of Gallatin counties.

The committee, through their chairman, W. W. The committee, through their chairman, W. W. Wright, reported the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

That we consider the prospects of the road at this moment better than they have ever been at the Louis-ville, Covington. The meeting was largely attended, the very best spirit prevailed, and a warm interest most clearly exhibited in the subject it had under consideration. The Hon. E. F. Nutall, being called upon, made a short speech in his usually warm, lucid, terse, and convincing style. Next came Gen. Geo. D. Dicken, armed at all points with stubbon facts and irrefutable arguments in support of this enterprise, to which he has devoted a large amount of means and years of unwearied toil and ceaseless exertions and in a smooth, but rapid manner, tore down the last objections to it, as though they were gossamer threads, with the consummate art and practiced skill of a polished veteran logician. Then came J. C. Ross who, in a few plain, sensible remarks, and in easy, yet strong manner, unfolded the advantages which the construction of the road proposed would confer upon the people within the sphere of its influence, and concluded by giving a cheering account of Owen. Lastly, came G. W. Sanders, who gave a cheering recital of the interest being taken by the people of Gallatin along the line in this project.

On motion, this meeting adjourned to meet at Sparta, Owen county, Ky., on the 24th of September.

THURSDAY EVENING, AUGUST 13, 1857.

AN ECONOMICAL LITERATEUR.-A correspondent of the Boston Courier, who attended the recent commencement of Bowdoin College, thus describes a character whom he encountered on that occasion:

One of the alumini pointed out to me this afternoon a short, elderly man, with a pale face and a generally wan look, whom he introduced as Curtis. Whether he have any prefix or affix to his name, or whether, like the heroes of old, one name suffices for him, I do not know. He has been here a number of years, and gathers a hard-earned support from menial services from the students. He blacks their boots, builds their fires, and works early and late. He lives in a sort of hut alone, and prepares his own food. His expense for board in summer amounts to about thirteen cents per week, and in winter is but a few cents more. All his money is devoted to the purchase of books. He is a large and retentive reader, and is well informed on almost all subjects. I am informed that in his little hut he has thousands of volumes stored away, which he announces his intention of bequeathing to the college. His Cockney pronunciation shows him to be English, but of his early life no one knows but himself, and he is wholly reticent. I am promised a visit to his house, and One of the alumini pointed out to me this afterly reticent. I am promised a visit to his house, and if I go I will tell you more of him and his library. He is another of those mysteries which abound in our country—a country of which fifty cent poetasters and story tellers complain that it lacks subjects

This famous character, we learn from a graduate This famous character, we learn from a graduate of Bowdoin, is universally known among the students as "Diogenes." He keeps all facts of his history a profound secret—except that occasionally, after imbibing too freely, he drops a few mysterious hints about his early life. His great delight is, after a few days of indulgence, to go to the college rooms long before daylight, and recite from memory pages from Pope, Dryden, Rogers, Campbell, and others of his favorite poets. His coming is heralded by his shrill whistling of a multitude of martial airs. His library, which he keeps stowed away in chests, in the shanty in which he sleeps, will probably be bequeathed, in accordance with his oft-repeated determination, to the Libraries of the College, over whose welfare he considers himself as having over whose welfare he considers himself as having

THE FIVE POINTS .- The following paragraph from the New York Express gives an idea of the fearful accretion of vice and squalor in the field of labor occupied by the Five Points Mission:

In attending to his duties recently, Mr. Pease found a dying woman in a foul apartment in Cow Bay, occupied, also, by eight other women and one man, all drunken and debased and infamous in the last extreme. In the upper end of the same pesti-lent court or close were found, in fifteen rooms, twen-ty-three families, making an aggregate of one hun-dred and seventy-nine persons, or twelve to a room! ty-three families, making an aggregate of one hundred and seventy-nine persons, or twelve to a room! In five of these fifteen rooms intoxicating liquors were kept for sale! Indescribable filth, privations, disease, and indecency reigned through them all. Yet seventeen children from these rooms attend the schools of the House of Industry. In eleven other rooms were eighteen families, and in nearly half of these rooms ardent spirits are sold. In one of the garrets lived two negroes with eleven abandoned white women. In twelve other rooms were found twenty four families, consisting of one hundred and twenty-four persons. Here were two blind women, two just past the peril of child-birth, and seventyone were children, only eight of whom attended any SHAMEFUL OUTRAGE IN LYNCHBURG .- The old Methodist church in Lynchburg, Virginia, on Sun-day night, August 9, was the theatre of a shameful outrage. It is thus noticed in the Lynchburg Cour-

It appears that, on Sunday night last, legious wretch managed to obtain access to the gasmeter and let off all the water. The consequence was that the gas soon went out, leaving the church in total darkness. Then it was that the same in total darkness. Then it was that the same wretch, together with his accomplices, scattered many pounds of finely powdered pepper on the floor, benches, railings, and elsewhere. The house was densely crowded, and after the gas was lighted again, and while the preacher was in the midst of a stirring appeal to the consciences of his hearers, the ladies commenced to ply their fans and the persons tending in the size to move shout to get a little ladies commenced to ply their fans and the persons standing in the aisle to move about to get a little fresh air. This roused up the powdered pepper and started the whole congregation to coughing and sneezing at a rate so terrible as to put a speedy stop to the services. Unable to endure their sufferings, many of the congregation rose up and made for the doors. The doors could not be opened. There were wretches outside holding them with ropes. How long this state of things lasted we were not told. What the consequences must have been we leave to be imagined. EUROPEAN NEWS BY THE FULTON.

The greatest confidence was manifested in the successful accomplishment of the enterprise.

France.—Nearly all the parties charged by the Moniteur with being accomplices in the recent conspiracy have emphatically denied the charges. In the London newspapers, Ledru Rollin, in particular, was very bitter against the Moniteur and the French Emperor, and appeals to the British Court in justice to refute the charge, as also do some of the others.

Letters from Paris intimate that there is sufficient evidence to convict Ledru Rollin, and other parties charged by the Moniteur with complicity in the conspiracy against the Emperor, and that consequently France will be in a position to demand their extradition from Four Evaluation to a criminal. The East India Mutany.—The mail which left Bombay on the 1st of this month, sixteen days after The East India Mutiny.—The mail which left Bombay on the 1st of this month, sixteen days after the previous departure, may be considered to report affairs as unchanged as they could be in that interval. The mutiny had continued to spread in the Bengal army, which was to be foreseen; but it had evidently not exceeded its original bounds. Delhi had not been captured, but the insurgents had betrayed the weakness of their position by some considerable sorties, and their own want of courage, discipline, or generalship by being beaten with great slaughter. So far as regards the besiegers and besieged, time would be in favor of the former, injurious as the example would be in other parts of India. The peaceful and industrious population of Bengal Proper watch the struggle much as we do, only having much more to lose and much less to do. However, as a measure of precaution, the native regiments at Calcutta and Barrackpore had been quietly disarmed. At Madras there was an uneasy feeling, but neither there nor at Bombay was there the slightest sign of disaffection. Nothing is reported of the Punjaub.

Here, then, it is evident that the mutiny is confined to the Northwest Provinces, far in the interior, and surrounded by a circle of order and loyalty. On every side our basis of operation is undisturbed, and, at the very worst, it is now very little more than one of those local wars with a State or confed-

On every side our basis of operation is undisturbed, and, at the very worst, it is now very little more than one of those local wars with a State or confederacy, such as we have had a dozen times over since the beginning of the century. We have no wish whatever to make the best of the news, but it certainly costs a little violence to torture more out of it. The worst is told when it is stated that Delhi was still in the hands of the insurgents, but when we know that General Barnard had only three or four thousand Europeans, while the insurgents were much more numerous, and, in addition to a fanatical population, better provided with artillery and ammunition, we can make allowance for the policy of not bringing the struggle to an immediate issue of not bringing the struggle to an immediate issue within the ramparts and streets of the city. Every week is now adding to the European force at the disposal of the Commander-in-Chief in Bengal, and by this time he must have diverted a considerable part of the Chinese expedition to a more urgent purpose. As fast as reinforcements arrive at Calcutta, and at the great citizen of the Carrest and the server in the carrest arrive at Calcutta, pose. As fast as reinforcements arrive at Calcutta, and at the great cities on the Ganges, the mutineers higher up will feel the ground sinking under them, and the toils drawing closer round their lair. Unable to make an impression on any British encampment, short of supplies, and waiting the slow onfind disunion and treachery in their own ranks, and those who are still in a condition to make terms for themselves, will avoid the evil partnership of men whose crimes are nast forciveness.

Those incurable though unsuccessful intriguers, the ex-King of Oude and his Minister, had been detected in correspondence with the mutineers, and put out of harm's way in Fort William. It will be re-membered that before the annexation of Oude the weakness of the Royal Family and its utter principle had drawn it into the habit of intriguing with one faction against another, and Mahomedan and Hindoos were destroying one another, both with the royal warrant. These intrigues, it was said in those days, necessarily ramified throughout all In-dia, as there was hardly a regiment in our service in which was not to be found both Mahomedans and in which was not to be found both branch. Hindoos with relations and friends in the kingdom of Orde, and engaged in its quarrels. It was not to be expected that his ex-Majesty could keep long out of his own element of faction. Whether he had much hand in causing the mutiny is of little impormuch hand in causing the mutiny is of little impor-tance; but so long as he was at large he probably had no more power of keeping clear of it than the miserable puppet in the Palace of Delhi. However, he is now in good hands; and, as Government has proof of his share in the conspiracy, the stoppage of his allowance will contribute to pay the costs of the war. These measures—the disarming of the natives and the imprisonment of the ex-King of Oude— show a state of things rather new to the quiet reporshow a state of things rather new to the quiet population of Calcutta. It has also been considered necessary to pass an act placing the press under a license system. Of so bare an announcement nothing can be said. No doubt the press must acknowledge "a state of siege;" but India has not suffered hitherto from too free a discussion of political questions.

tiens, or too much knowledge of public affairs.

The news from China would be very important if any news could now be important which did not bear directly on the great struggle going on under the walls of Delhi. But here, as in India, the progress of affairs has been much what might have been anticipated. The Chinese fight with increasing perti-nacity and discipline, and show themselves not only better soldiers than in the last war, but even more successful. In two engagements they have killed and wounded altogether 33 of our men. They have, not, however, been able to avert the total destruction of their fleet. Our flotilla of gunboats, having done this service, will now be able to visit all the river forts, and show themselves at Canton without interruption. As that city is thus actually in our power, there seems no substantial reason why the mere proof of this should not obtain for us all the ts of the expedition without further bloodshed or military operations.

son named Losads, a Guatemalan by birth, and commissioned by Santa Anna to treat with the Spanish Government, has arrived in Mad-id.

It is supposed that the communications with this agent delayed the answer of the Spanish Minister to the offer made by Lord Howden and his colleague, the acceptance, if what is currently reported in Madrid be true, being couched in rather ambiguous and not over-gracious terms. It is also stated that the Spanish Government was informed in very plain and unmistakeable terms, that if the mediation was rejected Spain must not count on any assistance from either England or France, whatever untoward cir-cumstances might arise to her out of a war with Mexico. This intimation, perhaps, hurt the suscep-tibility of the Spanish Government, but fear has been even stronger than pride, and the mediation has been accepted, as I have just mentioned, after much hesitation and difficulty; so at least my letters state as the news of the day. The British and French Ministers have carried out the desire of their respective Governments, and acted throughout this affair in the carrier spirit. affair in the same spirit.

DR. CATLIN.-The New York Times, of Tuesday, has the following:

A Visit to Dr. Catlin.—One of our reporters visited Dr. Catlin in the Tombs yesterday, and found him acting as warden of the third corridor. He professed to be quite comfortable. Touching the rumor (which good authority assures us to be more than rumor), that the Doctor personated Dr. Bur-dell on the 28th of October, the eventful night of the alleged marriage, he protested that he was ready to contest that point and was not afraid of the result. He called attention to the fact that he was not so tall as Burdell. Such is indeed the case, but not so tall as Burdell. Such is indeed the case, but otherwise Dr. Catlin does bear no indifferent likeness to the murdered man. He complains that the newspapers have not done him justice—says that he devoutly believed Mrs. Cunningham's statements until this exposure, but is now convinced that she is a vile woman. Of her unfortunate daughters he cannot be brought to think anything harsh. But for his sympathy with them he says he would not be where he is.

Dogology—A New Science.—Anecdote of Gen. Leslie Combs.—Although a veteran of the war of 1812, and one of its bravest, General Combs still Lestic Combs.—Although a veteran of the war of 1812, and one of its bravest, General Combs still retains the sprightliness of youth; his head is erect, his back straight as a pine tree, his eye bright as a game-cock's, and his laugh as cheerful as the carol of a bird in nesting time. All these qualities are doubtless owing to an internal well-spring of wit and humor, as certain to keep the outer man fresh and verdurous as the spray of a fountain will keep its borders in perpetual bloom. One day the General was traveling in a stage coach with one of those unhappy philosophers who bestow more attention upon the lumps on their skull than on the linings thereof, yclept phrenologists. Of course everybody in the stage was bored by this professor, until the General drew him into an unlucky ambuscade. "Sir," said Leslie, "I used to be of opinion that this science was neither correct nor founded upon proper grounds, although I had never given the subject the attention I now find it merits; but I am convinced, from the very able discourse you have given us, that your theory is a just one, and of no little consequence when we need to make an estimate of the characters and dispositions of men. But although I had no great faith in it, yet I was sometimes struck with the resemblances in its leading featurest of characters and dispositions of men. But although I had no great faith in it, yet I was sometimes struck with the resemblances in its leading features to a science with which I am familiar, and by which I am in a great measure guided in my intercourse with strangers"—

"No, sir," replied the Professor, aghast.
"Dogology?" echoed the Professor, aghast.
"Dogology," said the General, with a winning smile, "I can always tell by the appearance of a dog what sort of a man his master is."

"Pardon me," said the General, with the most amiable expression of countenance. "I will convince you to the contrary. And if I fail to do so, I will forfeit the drinks for the whole stage lead of passengers." load of passengers."

"Oh, yes! that you could readily make up a fanciful theory, I am convinced, and draw an imaginary character for that of the master of every dog, I have tolerably good reasons for believing. But how am I to tell whether you are correct or not? I am a stranger here as well as yourself," said the wary professor. professor.

"We will leave the decision to the landlord of the tavern where we stop. He must know every person in the place," replied the General.

"Agreed," said the phrenologist, winking at the other passengers, and regaining his self-satisfied air.

"I agree to that, and will forfeit the drinks if the landlord's account tallies with your descriptions."

On arriving at the tavern, dinner was speedily On arriving at the tavern, dinner was speedily discussed, the passengers being anxious to enjoy the exhibition of this novel science. The General beckned the landlord out of the bar-room. This drew all the idlers with him, so that with them and the passengers there was a tolerably large group in front of the tavern, and of course this attracted other persons to see what was going on; so that, by the time the landlord had been made acquainted with his duties as arbiter, quite a respectable audience was collected—in numbers, at least.

"The owner of that dog," said the General, as a fine pointer, with a steel chain collar around his neck passed "is a gentleman of education and property. He lives well, dresses well; has a fine house (the best house in town, quoth the landlord), enjoys himself rationally, is fond of society, a sportsman, (that he is), is generally popular and on good terms with his neighbors. How is that, landlord?" "True as a die," said the landlord, "the very

Just then a little wiry Scotch terrier darted from under a garden gate, opposite, and rushed up street after a flock of chickens. "The owner of that dog," after a flock of chickens. "The owner of that dog," said the speaker, "is a boy about fourteen or fifteen years of age. A sly little rogue, always about some m schief; he is a spoiled child; perhaps the only one; he and the dog are constant companions, and neither is happy unless engaged in some scrape; and the rhood is no doubt in trouble all the time with their pranks.

"By jolly!" said the landlord, "there's something in this here dogology. "That boy is just such a boy as you say he is, stranger!"

"The owner of that dog," continued the General, as a pug-nosed bull-dog, with great wrinkles on his cheeks, short, belligerent ears, heavy, thick eyes, broad chest, bandy forelegs, and a tail that looked as if it had been gnawed off, made its appearance, "is an uneducated man. In disposition he is suspicious and obstinate; very wrong-headed; not likely cious and obstinate; very wrong-headed; not likely to have many friends—if any, men like himself; not apt to take much interest in public affairs; close in his dealings, and not given to talk much."

"By thunder!" said the landlord, "you've got him again. The owner of that bull-dog is a Dutch butcher. He don't talk, for he can't speak English good; he don't take no interest in public matters, good; he don't take no interest in public matters, cause he can't vote, and he's obstinate as a mule, as I know, for he always gets more pounds of meat on his bill than there is in his weight, and he won't take off a cent neither."

"That dog," said General Leslie, elevating his voice, for he was very much elated with his success so far, and he saw a capital specimen of the bull terrier coming up the road—a union of ferocity and cunning—heavy-headed, lank-bodied, broad-breasted, eyes like coals of fire, ears and tail cropped for rough and tumble fighting—"that dog, gentlemen, is owned by a man who is probably the worst man in this town, if not in the State of Kentucky. He is destitute of honor and principle, and would not is destitute of honor and principle, and would not hesitate to take the life of any man for the sake of a few dollars." Here he was interrupted by a voice in the crowd:

Here he was interrupted by a voice in the crowd:

"Look here, stranger, you're making a little too free with my character, by Gard! That dog belongs to me!" and the speaker pushed his way through the erowd and confronted the dogologist.

"My friend," said the General calmly, pushing back the hair from his high forehead, "I want to ask you a question—where did you get that dog?"

"By Gard!" said the man, "I ratsed htm."

"Then," said the General, "I've lost the drinks.
I was only betting on dogology, and, my friend, you have swept me. Come in," said he to the phrenologist, "I want you to feel the bumps of this gentleman; and I hope the rest of the crowd will join me in a drink to old Kentucky."

Any person who has seen the Great West will know how cheerfully this last sentiment was approved of by the crowd generally.

A Robber Shot and Killed .- Yesterday morning, about an hour before day-break, Patrick Kennedy, a gardener in the employ of Mr. H. L. Guion, was aroused from his bed by some one in the room where himself and wife were sleeping. The person, who proved to be a negro man belonging to W. C. Anderson, Esq., made his escape out of the door, and when about fifteen or twenty yards from the house, turned and threw a brickbat at Mr. Kennedy, and made his escape. After Mr. K. had closed his door and reescape. After Mr. K. had closed his door and retired to bed again, the negro returned and endeavored to re-enter the house through the window; and in the act of getting into the window, Mr. Kennedy fired at him, the ball striking him near the region of the heart. He ran about twenty steps, fell and expired immediately. Upon the person of the negro the following articles were found: 2 pistols, 1 large knife, powder, 1 box matches, a candle, and a pocket-book containing about $25. This morning a gentleman of reliability came up and said that on a gentleman of reliability came up and said that on Saturday night he was robbed of about that amount, and described the money found upon the negro exactly.—Memphis Evening News, Aug. 10.

DESCRIPTION OF THE YACHT CHARTER OAK. Our advices by the Indian, as Quebec, informed us yesterday of the arrival in E gland of the American yacht Charter Oak, which sailed from this port in June last for Liverpool under command of her builder and owner, Mr. Charles R. Webb, of Stamford Comp.

builder and owner, Mr. Charles R. Webb, of Stamford, Conn.

The Charter Oak is sloop rigged, and her lines, judging from the way she sits on the water, are everything that could be desired to ensure speed and bearing. The following are her dimensions: Length 43 feet, beam over all 13½, hold 5½, mast 39, topmast 16, bowsprit 10, boom 38, gaff 17, hoist of mainsail 34 feet, tonnage 23 14-95 tons.

Her canvass cohsists of mainsail, jib, flying jib, gaff topsail, squaresail, and studdingsail—spreading in all 900 yards. The hull is built of white oak timbers and frame, with hacmatack knees; the deck is of white pine, and the ceiling yellow pine.

She was built, is owned, and was sailed by Mr. Chas. R. Webb, a mative of Stamford, Conn., and a ship carpenter by profession. He informed us he is only 27 years of age, but he looks much older, for there is an air of experience about him, much of which has doubtless been acquired during half a dozen voyages across the Atlantic on board the Phænix, one of a line of Liverpool packets.

It is stated by the telegraph from Quebec that the Charter Oak reached Liverpool with only two men on board, but prior to his departure Mr. Webb intended that his crew should consist of the mate, Mr. Wm. Andrew Tucker, two seamen and a cook—five hands in all, including officers. He carried out provisions and water for 90 days, safely stowed away in the poop cabin. This apartment is considerably roomy inside, and contains eight berths, a cooking stove, coal bin and cask of water.

We believe that Mr. Webb finally saled from N. York with only a crew of two men.

The Charter Oak cleared from this port on the 20th of June, and was spoken at sea on the 5th of July.—N. Y. Herald.

The Goodwood Cup for this year is really what it professes to be—a cup and not a palm tree, a group of pugnacious warriors or flying steeds. It is a noble vase of oxidized silver in the ornamented or reasissance style of the sixteenth century, and is beyond all doubt one of the most effective and artistic imitations of the mediæval silver work which has yet been produced. The upper part is subdued and simple in style, being only ornamented with flat engraving of ivy leaves and berries upon a bright matted ground. The handles form an altogether novel and striking combination, and so interlaced in the quaint, elaborate style of the renassance period as to present the effect of four winged figures of fame rising from their base. The body is adorned with a finely executed bas relief of Queen Elizabeth reviewing the English forces near Tilbury. The figures are beautifully chased and grouped with excellent taste, and the costumes of the soldiery are taken from the best authorities; the features and dress of the Queen from the coins of her reign. The opposite side has an ornamental tablet for inscription, enriched with bosses, wreaths, and sunken damascene work. side has an ornamental tablet for inscription, enriched with bosses, wreaths, and sunken damascene work. The foot is formed by crowned tritons supporting chased medallion portraits after Holbein of Lord Burleigh and Sir Francis Drake. The general effect of the whole piece is unusually striking and attractive; and the imitations of the steeled damascene being perfect, gives the vase the aspect of an antique piece of family plate rather than a work fresh from the jewellers. The design modelling is by Mr. Arustead—the workmanship such as only comes from Hancock's. nes from Hancock's.
